National Geographic did a wonderful job with this map. Very attention to detail not only in the topographic map itself, but it's also loaded with pictures & information regarding the regions of the country. There's also a smaller map of Panama City, but not as detail as the rest of the map. Very colorful - expected for National Geographic anyway. Even main highways are included. Very well put together; it definitely complements their travel book. Highly recommended!!!

This is a great map for trekking around Panama. It's a good scale - it shows even small towns, yet it's not too huge. It's made of a durable and fairly waterproof paper. It has interesting info on native peoples, history, and popular places. Whether you're hitching or hiking, riding busses or driving, this map could definitely be of use to you.

This is a great map of Panama. It is printed on heavy laminated paper so that it will last and not fall apart if it gets wet in you backpack or fanny pack while touring the country in the rainy season. It is also colorful enough to put on any wall framed or not. The detail is amazing and the tidbits are very informative. I grew up in Panama and take the current issue of this map with me every time I return to visit my old haunts. Ewald Wiberg author of The Perfect Vacation: One Couple's Adventures at Sea With and Without the Kids

Most complete map of Panama. This map has all the small towns and villages that most other Panama maps don't.

National Geographic maps show all the towns, cities, and roads. They are waterproof and will sustain repeated foldings without any rupture in the fabric. With regular maps, if you fold them several times, they will tend to rip on the fold lines. National Geographic maps may cost a bit more, but they are well worth it, as they have a long life.

Without a doubt, the best map available for Panama!! Add the high quality of National Geographic and you have an A+ map! If only they would do Nicaragua, too. OUTSTANDING MAP!

Always a useful map... National Geographic produces the best, and we've been using its maps for our trips to the Philippines, China, Japan, Peru, Belize, and now Panama, and will continue to rely on these and maps of other countries we'll be traveling to in the next couple of years!

It's the best map I could find. Really good to use with a GPS. Good level of detail. It has a water resistant surface, which is very good, as Panama is more than just a little rainy. This is not USGS level of detail by any means, but it's a good map.
